

DIETZ

The last Operation
Enduring Freedom print being made

“FIRST IN...LAST OUT”

“FIRST IN...LAST OUT”
In May of 2002, XVIII Airborne Corps deployed to serve as Conditional Joint Task Force 180, the first operational command for Operation Enduring Freedom in Afghanistan. Twelve years later, the Corps returned to lead the International Security Assistance Force Joint Command. XVIII Airborne Corps performed valiantly in the longest war ever fought by Americans to defeat terrorists and protect the people of Afghanistan.
by JAMES DIETZ

Renowned Artist, James Dietz, captures the transition of security responsibility from soldiers of the International Security Assistance Force Joint Command, of which XVIII Airborne Corps served as the core of the headquarters, to their strong and confident Afghan partners. XVIII Airborne Corps, both the first and the final Corps headquarters to serve in Afghanistan, testifies to the enduring commitment made by US Soldiers to the people, communities, and the Afghan National Security Forces over 13 years of continuous combat, the longest war every fought by Americans.

ORDERING DETAILS

- ⇒Displayed here is the colored print that is available for purchase
- ⇒Limited to only 500 signed and numbered prints
- ⇒Print size approximately 31” x 23”
- ⇒Price per print: $100.00
- ⇒Shipping and Handling: $20.00
- ⇒Order from the Braxton Bragg AUSA website: <https://www.ausa.org/chapters/braxton-bragg-chapter>
- ⇒Each print is numbered and signed by James Dietz
- ⇒Prints are available now! Buy Now
- ⇒Local pick up available by coordinating through email: hbraxtonbragg@nc.rr.com

